However, the molecular mechanism of its tolerance to abiotic stress is not clear. MicroRNAs (miRNAs) are small non-coding RNAs that negatively regulate gene expression. With the rapid development of high-throughput sequencing, a series of miRNAs have been identified in several plants. In this study, 39 conserved miRNAs and 55 novel miRNAs were identified. And their expression levels were analyzed using the Illumina high-throughput sequencing. Based on their sequences, the target genes were predicted using psRNATarget and the target genes were classified into six categories: transcription factors (TFs), ethylene responsive factors (ERFs), homeobox proteins (HBs), protein phosphatases (PPs), kinases (Ks) and receptor-like kinases (RLKs). The gene ontology (GO) enrichment and Kyoto Encyclopedia of Genes and Genomes (KEGG) pathway analysis were carried out to identify the function of target genes. The results suggested that the functional regions of the target genes of some miRNAs are in the CDS, while those of some miRNAs are in the 5' untranslated region (5' UTR). The result also showed that many target genes are involved in some important biological processes, including cell death, fatty acid
