Thus, in order to implement a desired optical transmission system using a particular optical fibre and components, it is necessary to consider the effect of the optical loss of the component, the transmission distance of the transmission optical signal in the system, and the effect of attenuation of the optical signal due to absorption in the optical fibre. The attenuation of the optical signal due to absorption in the fibre is given by Equation 1: (21) $E_s/E_o = 1/A_o$ (26) where: E_o =optical signal strength; E_s =optical signal strength of the transmission line; A_o =optical loss at the receiver end of the system. The attenuation in an optical fibre is primarily due to absorption in the fibre. Absorption in the fibre is caused primarily by Rayleigh scattering and is substantially independent of the wavelength of the optical signal. To enable the required
